PARTY CAUCUSES OF LEADERS OUT TO FEEL TENSION

Republicans and Democrats to Prepare for Opening of Congress.

COURSES NOT CLEAR

Negotiations on Party Committee Ratios Progress as Time Draws Near.

(By the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—With the republican and democratic organization meetings only a day away the republican progressive blocks and other groups in the senate and house moved forward in their conferences today toward clearer definition of their lines of action.

Sixty republicans were invited to attend a conference of house progressives this morning to consider a house program drafted by the bloc's executive committee. Their action and its effect one way or another on the decisions of the party conference tomorrow are expected to determine the ease or difficulty the regular republican group will experience in organizing the house.

The courses of the democrats and progressives in the senate had not been made clear over the holidays and the republican leaders were adhering to their determination to leave to them the initiative in any organization fight. It was generally believed the democrats could not force an election of a president of the senate without support from the progressive bloc and some democrats said they might withhold such a motion until after the joint session to hear the president's message unless it was delayed by a fight over the organization of the house.

Negotiations between republican and democratic leaders in the house on committee ratios have progressed, it is said, to the point where the minority is thought to be assured of nine members on all committees having a personnel of twenty-one, but agreement with respect to others has not been reached. It is regarded as unlikely that the republicans will consent to the placing of eleven democrats on the ways and means committee, fifteen on the appropriation committee, and five on the rolls committee, and indications are that the figures will be reduced by one in each case.

Election of democratic members to the ways and means committee promises the only fight in their party conference tomorrow night. Representative Martin of Louisiana, who has announced his intention to fight to retain his seat on the committee, faces determined opposition because of his stand on the tariff.

DAVENPORT PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO CHARGES

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 30.—Dr. A. E. Davenport, state health commissioner, today pleaded not guilty to five charges of diverting public funds contained in indictments returned last week by a district court grand jury. Bond for $5,000 on each of the charges made when the indictments were returned will stand until his trial.

Dr. Davenport was charged with having paid T. P. Edwards, chauffeur to former Governor Walton, from the funds of the state health department for services rendered as a personal employee of the executive. Indictments charging the same offense were returned against Walton and Edwards.

Dr. Davenport's resignation tendered to Gov. M. E. Trapp following his indictment will be effective tomorrow.

Former Governor Slated to Address Anti-Klan Meeting

(By the Associated Press)

DURANT, Nov. 30.—Former governor J. C. Walton was expected to arrive here this afternoon to address a meeting of representatives of five anti-klan organizations. The meeting convened this morning at ten o'clock with approximately 200 representatives in attendance. District Judge Porter Newman of Durant was elected temporary chairman. The announced intention of the meeting is to amalgamate five organizations under one name or at least under the leadership Committees on credentials and organizations were appointed this morning. A business meeting is being held this afternoon.

ADA HI BATTLES TO TIE RESULTS

Final Game of Season With Atoka Fails to Register Score.

Ada high finished a highly successful season Tuesday when they met Atoka high in football at the latter place. The resulting score was 0-0, neither side succeeding in putting the ball over for a count.

Leaving in cars Tuesday morning the local players drove over sixty miles of rough roads, securing a short period of rest before meeting their last opponents of this season. During the first half of the game the ball was in Ada's possession perhaps two-thirds of the time and in the second half the two teams played on equal terms.

Atoka was represented by two star halfbacks who gained consistently around end until they neared Ada's goal when they were unable to advance. This means of offense was depended on almost entirely by the defending team, the speed of the backs offering their means of balancing the plunging power of the visitors.

The Ada players depended on passes and plunging, the Ada backs going through the opposing line for consistent gains, but fumbling or losing the ball on downs as they approached the goal which marked victory.

Willoughby and Kerr were the most consistent tacklers on defense, while the entire backfield played dependably. Floyd intercepted an unusual quota of passes.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Lindsey, who have rooms in the L. T. Walters home on East Thirteenth street, narrowly escaped asphyxiation Thursday evening. They went into their room and turned the gas on, closing all doors and windows.

While reading, Mr. Lindsey noticed that his throat was getting dry and looked over at Mrs. Lindsey, who was almost unconscious. He then managed to reach the telephone and call for the doctor. He did not know anything else until after the doctor arrived.

Both of them are feeling normal today.

MEXICAN CITY REPORTED DESTROYED BY FIRE

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 30.—The city of Tampico, Mexico, is threatened with destruction by a fire which is raging unchecked, according to a cablegram received here this afternoon by E. M. Elias, Mexican consul. There were no details.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Nov. 30.—Private cables to San Antonio from Tampico states that the fire destroyed one city block near the heart of the city. The block destroyed was one block north of the Cathedral Plaza. Shut down of the light and power plant and a cold wave interfered with fire fighting.

DIAMOND MERCHANT ROBBED OF HIS JEWELS

(By the Associated Press)

TULSA, Nov. 30.—Diamonds said to be valued at between $50,000 and $60,000 were stolen last night by thieves who entered a hotel room here occupied by Charles Mednicov, representative of a wholesale diamond company of Memphis, Tenn. The robbery was discovered by Mednicov when he returned from a theatre. He told the police that stones in another case valued at $75,000 and mounted gems in a trunk valued at $150,000 were overlooked. Mednicov said the loss was covered by insurance with the exception of about $5,000.

According to his report to the police he returned to his room at 11:15 p. m. and found the door ajar. The stolen gems were in his trunk, he said, the lock of which had been broken. He declared he was at a loss to explain why the thieves had not taken the mounted gems which were in the same trunk. Police and operatives of a private detective agency have been unable to obtain any clue as to the identity of the robbers.

Irene is Married Again

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—Irene Castle, the dancer, and Frederick McLaughlin, wealthy Chicago coffee merchant, were married here Wednesday evening. It was learned today.

The marriage took place at the McLaughlin residence and was a very quiet ceremony. The newlyweds left Chicago last night for the west.

The news that the widow of Vernon Castle, dancer and war hero who lost his life while an aviation instructor in Texas, and later the wife of Captain Robert Tremaine, from whom she was divorced in Paris, had married again was confirmed at the office of W. F. McLaughlin and Company today. The bridegroom is secretary and treasurer of the company.

Tishomingo Officers Face Charge of Part in Preventing Election

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 30.—Charges were filed today at Tishomingo against S. A. Shores and T. H. Hunt, deputy sheriff's alleging that they took ballot boxes and prevented the holding of the special state election on October 2 in a portion of Johnston county, it was announced by George F. Short, state attorney-general. Attorney general Short said the majority of proposed prosecution for alleged interference with the election have been held up until the supreme court had passed on the validity of the election, but that the Johnston county cases were filed on the basis of the law making it a crime to interfere with a ballot box in any election.

NEWTON HEADING HERE FOR WINTER

Home-Coming Exhibition Given for Benefit of Church Building Fund.

It would indeed be a dull year that passed without a good circus coming to town. In this regard Ada is a trifle late this season, but the high quality of the Honest Bill and Lucky Bill shows will make up for the lateness of the season.

These shows will be here tomorrow and close the season with two first class performances before going into winter quarters, having reached home after two seasons on the road. The homecoming of the shows is an event of more than merely passing notice for the organization is a large one and the prestige of the show with home people who have witnessed performances in the past is all that could be desired. These shows rank among the first in the country in the point of size for road shows. They travel in their own trucks and are independent of the railroads in their movements.

Honest Bill Newton came in this morning from Roff where an exhibition is being given today to put the finishing touches on the preparations for the two performances at Ada tomorrow.

Aside from the general excellence of the shows, the owners on taking up their residence here at once become boosters for Ada and when there is need for some public work Honest Bill is always one of the first to be called to duty, if he is within reach, and he never fails to respond.

In keeping with this spirit of service to the community, the owners of the shows sometime ago offered to donate the entire proceeds of tomorrow's performance to the building fund of the Presbyterian church, a proposition that was accepted most gratefully.

The show will be staged at the Glass plant grounds, a location nearer the city could not be found.

Cotton

Cotton receipts continue to increase slowly and are now headed for the 3,000 mark.

Today at noon 2,443 bales had been received at the county yard and 697 round bales had been turned out. Counting these as half bales the total for the season is 2,747.

FORMATION OF GERMAN CABINET ANNOUNCED

(By the Associated Press)

BERLIN, Nov. 30.—Official announcement of the formation of the new three-party coalition cabinet for Germany with Dr. Wilhelm Marx as chancellor and ex-chancellor Stresemann as foreign minister was made this afternoon.

No great enthusiasm is displayed over the saving by a narrow margin of the country's parliamentary system through the solution of the cabinet crisis.

MOVIE STAR DIES AS RESULT OF BODY BURNS

(By the Associated Press)

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 30.—Martha Mansfield, motion picture star, died here at noon today as a result of burns received while she was filming a picture at Breckenridge Park Thursday afternoon. Miss Mansfield received the burns when a flimsy dress she was wearing became ignited, enveloping the lower portion of her body in flames. Miss Mansfield's death was caused from shock, attending physicians said.

FIVE KILLED, MANY INJURED IN STORM

(By the Associated Press)

HOUMA, La., Nov. 30.—Five persons, four of them members of one family, were killed and five others injured in a storm which wrecked 25 houses in the Little Caillon Bayou section, 16 miles south of here Wednesday night.

The dead are Ralph Guidry, his wife and two children, Alice and Laurin, 11 and 14, respectively, an Katherine Brunet, 12.

The Guidrys were killed when their home collapsed, burying them in the ruins. A two-month-old babe, the sole remaining member of the family, was blown more than 100 yards into a field where it was found unhurt.

The Brunet girl was drowned when the houseboat in which her family lived capsized. Brunet and his wife escaped.

No estimate of the damage, which was heavy, has been made. Crops in the storm area were either destroyed or badly damaged.

RECESS MAY END WORK OF SOLONS

Klan Legislation Activities
Thought Over; Ruth May Demand Attention.

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 30.—With both houses of the state legislature in recess over the week end, predictions of a recess at the end of next week until after the first of the year were current at the capitol today.

Klan legislation is regarded in many quarters as having virtually ceased to be of prime importance in view of the action of the senate early this week in passing a bill to regulate secret orders which supporters of strict regulation laws declare is without "teeth."

Observers foresee a sharp but brief fight in the house when the Klan bill comes up, but here is little difference of opinion as to the outcome. Proponents of the Klan are expected to control the situation throughout.

This leaves the impeachment trial of Charles H. Ruth, supreme court commissioner, as the chief interest of the senate and the expulsion trial of Murray Gibson, representative from McClain county and former speaker, as the outstanding business in the house. Both trials are expected to be brief and it is believed that they will be concluded with ease before the end of next week.

During the proposed recess Governor M. E. Trapp would formulate a legislative program which would be ready for presentation when the session resumed in January. This program, according to belief in well informed quarters, will be designed to repeal in several instances legislation passed at the behest of former governor J. C. Walton, recently removed by a senate impeachment court. No details of the contemplated program, however, have been indicated by Governor Trapp.

Police and Sisters Differ on Cause of Girl Leaving Home.

(By the Associated Press)

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 30.—Seattle police and the sisters of Miss Nell Austin, 23, Seattle school teacher, who was found here unconscious Wednesday night, disagreed today as to the manner in which she left her home last Saturday night. Meantime, those interested are waiting for Miss Austin to recover consciousness in the hospital to which she was taken so that she may settle the dispute.

Her sisters, Misses Lila and Georgia Austin, who arrived here last night asserted that the teacher did not leave her home of her own free will. The Austin sisters recently came to Seattle from Hugo, Oklahoma.

Sergeant W. E. Carr and Patrolman S. E. Jennings of the Seattle police department, who identified Miss Austin here last night, declared that she left her home because of trouble with her sisters. In support of their theory the policemen issued a detailed statement of what they said were the movements of the girl after she left home. They said she wore a hiking costume under the dress in which she left.

"Never will anyone make me believe that Nell left home of her own free will," Miss Lila Austin told the police. "I know there was no trouble between us. Some person compelled her to go with them." Miss Georgia made a similar declaration.

The two sisters probably will be allowed to visit the teacher today if she recovers consciousness.

Liquor Flows and Eight Pace Floor of Police Court

The police blotter was smoothed over with the rough hand of the high magistrate this morning and the report of eight defendants was left in the impression as evidence of surplus Thanksgiving spirits yesterday.

The freedom of consumption of festive brew, local and imported, left the stain of four drunks on the police blotter, which were marked off with the payment of four fines for he charges.

Four defendants also faced the bar of justice on charges of fighting, which is alleged to have resulted from booze consumption.

Deficiency Certificates Cancelled

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 30.—A $10,000 deficiency certificate issued by former governor J. C. Walton for the state health department has been cancelled by Governor M. E. Trapp, it became known today. Issuance of the certificate was the basis for one of the charges in the impeachment bill on which Walton was convicted.

DURANT SAVAGES ROUT TIGERS IN FINAL TILT HERE

East Central Squad Falls to Heavy Defeat at Hands of Invaders.

POTTS TIGER'S STAR

Witt and Eubanks Feature in Annual Fray here on Turkey Day.

Again the Southeastern Savages invaded the lair of the East Central Tigers and when the scrap died out in the hollow of Park Field, the Tigers left the field with stinging defeat again on their hands from the onslaught of the Savage crew and this time a fatal score of 30 to 6.

The ability of the Southeastern back plunged at will through the East Central line proved undoing and finally the utter collapse of their prospects for victory.

East Central, with Potts and Johnson, were able to gain through the Southeastern line but were lacking in the needed punch when they neared the Southeastern goal line.

The offense offered by the East Central squad was inferior to the brilliant running of Witt and Eubanks of the Southeastern squad while the East Central line defense could not stem the tide of the steady march down the field in every quarter of the game.

East Central's only touchdown came in the second quarter when Potts passed 36 yards to Johnson and Johnson plunged across the goal line. The try for extra points failed and East Central established their only score of the game.

From the first kickoff, Southeastern worked the ball up the field to 15-yard line and Eubanks' trained toe came in for the first counter of the game, a perfect place-kick netting the point. No other advantage to either team was given in the first quarter.

In the second quarter, Southeastern added two more touchdowns, one when Witt plunged across the line after a series of mad plunges through line had brought the ball within the shadows of the goal posts, and the second when Ada received a 10-yard penalty that placed the ball within one yard of the goal posts and Eubanks dodged through line for the touchdown.

Two passes in the final period of the play brought the two remaining touchdowns to the Southeastern squad, one to Witt over the goal line and another to Eubanks, who carried the ball thirty yards for the touchdown.

Potts and Johnson Stars

In the pale of stellar lights of the game, Potts stands out as the shining light of the East Central squad with his continued plunging of line and around end for gains. Potts started the fireworks for Ada on the first kickoff from Durant when he gathered up the pigskin on East Central's 15-yard line and reversed the ball down through the entire Southeastern team for 37-yards. Potts registered several long gains around end but his ability as a passer stood out, as his best bet. Potts' perfect pass to Johnson shared the only touchdown of the game and his record throw of 55 yards is considered the longest pass hurled over the local gridiron. Potts uncovered another step to stardom when his ability at tackling was shown when the Southeastern squad continually plunged through line and the defense was thrown to the East Central backs.

Johnson also shared in the list of heroes, his completed pass being the only counter for East Central. While he labored under the handicap of having a cast over his knee, which was broken in an early game of the season, he provided one of the stars on the East Central team. Capps, Stegall and Kratz were noticeable in working the line.

Southeastern's victory came through their two-man machine of Witt and Eubanks, who were constant gainers over East Central territory. Witt is considered by many the star for the Durant by reason of his wonderful broken field running and his passing ability while others hand Eubanks the credit for the heavy end of the laurels. Witt and Eubanks registered two touchdowns each and Eubanks was successful on one place-kick. Wright, Southeastern half-back, was also a constant gainer while Lewis and Roberts showed up well on ends.

The closing of the season marked up three defeats for East Central, coming from Weatherford, Edmond and Durant while Southeastern suffered defeat at the hands of the Edmond tribe.

The Red Lock

A Tale of the Flatwoods

By DAVID ANDERSON

Author of "The Blue Moon"

Copyright by The Bobbs-Merrill Co.

The preacher's laugh was the most strikingly odd expression of his strikingly odd personality—a sort of half-forged laugh that did not seem to come into existence naturally; a kind of sarcastic exclamation point that exploded at untimely and most unexpected intervals in his conversation.

As they passed the spot where the sadly winsome face of the mountain girl had flared forth from the cove that morning and he had picked up Uncle Nick's trail, Jack Warhope, sitting his horse as only a man trained to the saddle can and riding for the most part in silence, drank a quick look into the bushes—a look that quick escaped the others.

The one girl and the two men—a combination of infinite possibilities—had reached the point where the road left the hollow and picked its way through the broken passes of the bluffs to the uplands, when the preacher stopped his horse and sat gazing up and across the narrow valley.

"How picturesquely that cabin nestles there in the pocket of the hills," "A man named Belden, and his sister, lives there," the girl said, following the direction of his upraised arm. "They're Kentucky mountain folks that just moved in—they say the sister's quite pretty."

The preacher seemed to be studying the place, with its wild wealth of nature about it, his eyes straying at length from the cabin to its tumbled setting of cliffs and down along the opposite bluffs, mantled with half-sprung leaves, ablaze with haw and dogwood and wild apple, until, as he twisted around in the saddle, the whole beautiful panorama of the narrow valley had passed in review before him back to the winding road by which they had entered.

As the girl followed his roving eyes, a black dead limb at the top of Eagle Oak, towering high above the quickening foliage, came into view. She raised her arm and pointed up and away to the lofty landmark.

"That's where the big gray eagle's been comin' every summer—sence white men first come to the Flatwoods, I guess. Look—just over the top o' that scrub poplar, stickin' up aginst that white cloud."

"I see it!" the man of books exclaimed, the simple gesture of pointing out to the distant landmark revealing the native grace that might still have been his but for the stooped and studious air that life had imposed upon him. "It stands out against the gluffy whiteness plain as a flagstaff."

"Nobody in the Flatwoods would think of harmin' it!"

She stopped, with a low exclamation, for the woodsman had suddenly straightened in his saddle and had jerked his hand toward the cabin squatting against the bluff's up the hollow. The others followed the motion of his hand and sat staring.

Loze Belden's sister had appeared from behind the cabin and was running toward them. She had nearly reached the bushes that fringed what might be called the front of the yard, when Belden appeared in the open door. He threw up his hand and called out a word or two, which did not quite carry to the three riders.

The mountain girl stopped and hesitated.

tated; turned and went slowly back. Belden stood aside; she entered the door; Belden closed it.

Jack was watching the preacher. He saw his quick grip on the bridle rein; saw him stiffen in the saddle and glance uneasily about.

"Astonishing!—Quite extraordinary!" escaped him as the tense brief drama closed.

"Mercy!" Texie exclaimed. "I never knewed she was—crazy."

"She ain't," the woodsman muttered.

The preacher glanced around at him; threw up his head and exploded his blarey laugh. It was a queer moment for a laugh, and a queer laugh for the moment.

"Not bad philosophy, that," he said. "People are not, always as crazy as they act."

The preacher was acting, the woodsman fully believed, but the act was just a shade overdone—a circumstance that could hardly escape such a man as Jack Warhope, particularly after the chance clues that had first set his suspicions going. Why he was acting and what part, the woodsman was not missing any chances to find out.

The three riders sat for some time looking toward the cabin in the pocket, Texie and the preacher discussing the astonishing drama that had flared up for its tense moment in the elbow of the hills.

But the drama evidently had but one act, and that act was closed. It seemed to the woodsman, as he covertly watched the preacher, looting with overdone awkwardness in his saddle, that he showed just a shade of relief that it was closed.

The sun, a red warrior on the home-ward trail, had journeyed far down the palling fastnesses of the sky; had ducked behind a huge cloud bank piled like a breastwork across the west. Presently, finding a loophole in the turreted cumuli, he glared back at the pursuing shadows; launched a shaft that fell spent and quivering upon Eagle run and shivered into glittering splinters upon the rifle.

Glim at the missed shaft, the red warrior took his eye from the loophole; drew farther back behind the massed fortifications; unstrung his bow. The pursuing shadows stole down the bluffs; dulled the water; dimmed the woods; waked the breeze and shook the wild apple twigs till the white blossoms snowed the grass—symbol of the hopes of men, that bloom, promise fruit, die.

The girl noticed the shadows. Her eyes left the cabin; glanced up and down the opposite bluff, where, under the brow of the wooded escarpment, objects were already beginning to dim.

The girl's roving glance stopped at a black walnut tree ten or fifteen yards away, where some frost-blasted walnuts of the season before still clung to a blighted limb. She swept a finger toward them, dropped her hand to the revolver at her belt and looked around at the woodsman. He caught the challenge in her eye, grinned and nodded.

With a quickness and skill that showed her mastery of the weapon, she plucked the revolver from its holster, raised it and fired. The first bullet cut a twig close to a walnut, the second brought one down.

Every horse there had been trained to stand under gun-fire. Rex merely pointed his ears sharply forward and stood to his tracks, but, even with such a firm saddle under him, the preacher flinched at the first shot that he almost lost his balance. The second brought an effusive exclamation from him.

The slow eyes of the woodsman lived.

"Good!" he cried. "Ther ain't another girl in the Flatwoods can do that."

With a little wisp of a smile in her eyes she glanced around at him, and turned to the preacher.

"Now, Mr. Hopkins, you can try y'r new six-gun."

The preacher almost set up a breeze in the little valley with the gesticulations of his expressive hands; made a heavy draft on his ample stock of effusive exclamations, and finally fumbled the ivory-handled six-gun out of its holster.

He committed the blunder of cocking it with both thumbs—a bit of over-acting that did not escape the man backing Graylock in apparent stolidness.

After a deal of coaching from Texie, the preacher poked the revolver forward and pulled the trigger. There was nothing to indicate that the bullet even came near the target. He threw his head back and exploded his raucous laugh. Rex had stood firm under the shot; he smiled at the laugh.

The preacher brought the horse back alongside of Browne and fired again—the bullet cut a nick in the rotted outer hull of a walnut, and she turned to the woodsman.

"Now, Jack, it's your turn."

"Aw, I couldn't hit one of 'em."

"Come on," she coaxed. "I ain't seen y' shoot none since—let's see—way y'ore corn plantin'."

He looked at her curiously, and shifted in his saddle. The preacher had half turned and watched him narrowly.

Suddenly the revolver leaped from the woodsman's side and darted about over the blighted limb. Three shots rang out; three walnuts flew into fragments and crumbled down upon the leaves.

The preacher had straightened in the saddle and sat watching the wonderful marksmanship with an eye that suddenly kindled to flint and flame; but as the third walnut shattered to dust and crumbs, the stoop came back to his shoulders, the air of tired studiousness to his face.

The girl turned to the woodsman, her fine eyes alive.

"You could 'a' got three more!"

The light in the brown eyes kindled a response in the gray; a slow smile crawled across his bold features.

"It's agin the law o' woods t' be caught with an empty gun," he said, with a seriousness that set her wondering, as he felt for the powder flask and bullets in his pouch.

In the dusk of the evening, as they rode back to the village, the girl stopped her horse in front of the old cabin, deserted and gloomy, that squatted against the side-hill a few yards back from the Eagle Hollow road—the uncanny hovel that the

"It's the Cabin of Dead Henry Spencer," She Said.

The sun just edged the tree-tops when he came opposite the place. Down in the bottom of the hollow the shadows lay heavy, but the light still touched the uncanny hovel squatted against the hillside.

Stealing through the bushes and brambles, he crept up to the place under cover of the fallen oak, with its festoons of wild cucumber vines. Near the corner most densely hidden by the vines a chink had dropped out from between the logs, leaving a narrow crevice. Shading his eyes, he peeped within. The cabin was empty.

Hugging the wall closely, he crept around to the sagging door; softly pushed it open. His eyes lifted at what he saw—an old box on end near what had once been the fireplace, an empty whisky bottle on the box, with a lamp standing beside it ready to light; a blanket ready to hang over the smudged window.

The dusty floor was covered with tracks—man tracks—one man's. Stepping so as carefully to set his feet in the tracks, he entered the cabin and closed the door.

The tracks had been made by a boot much worn and frayed. The man that made them must have been large and heavy, for his boot heel had dented deep into the floor boards, and the length of his stride indicated him to be little, if any, under six feet. The profusion of tracks, together with a number of half-burned matches scattered about the floor, indicated that he had been there some time—possibly several times.

The woodsman found himself wondering what manner of man he could have been, and what his purpose. And why did he bring a lamp instead of a candle? Lamps were none too plenty in the Flatwoods. Again there came over him that strangely disquieting premonition of danger—intangible; indefinable; deadly deliberate.

Everything pointed to the conclusion that the cabin's unknown visitor would come again—probably with the night. The lamp on the box, the blanket ready to hang over the window, were not without a purpose. What that purpose might prove to be could only be conjectured—possibly horse stealing. But no, or why a lamp instead of a candle?

He glanced up at the loft—except for a few boards lying loose and scattered about upon the joists, the cabin was open to the roof; he looked around into the dim far corner back of the door—it was half filled with a clutter of rubbish, broken boxes and the like—but no tracks led that way.

Using the greatest care to conceal his footprints, he opened the door, stepped cautiously out, closed it and, after a critical look about the surrounding weeds and bushes, slipped away up the side of the timbered bluff, through the woods and back to his unfinished chores.

After a hasty supper, he drew out his revolver; bent over it a brief but thoroughly competent instant of inspection by the candle; tried the trigger-pull; twirled the cylinder; dropped it back in the holster; blew out the candle and laid his hand to the door-latch. The warning of the mountain girl crossed his mind—he turned back; closed the hearth of the cook stove to hide its light; opened the door softly and stepped out into the gathering night toward the dead woodchopper's cabin.

The cloud-bank had dissolved in the west when he again reached the ill-omened hovel and the sky was hanging out its stars—the big ones already out, and the little ones coming.

He again crept down the wooded face of the bluff and, under cover of the fallen oak, festooned with the wild cucumber vines, stole up to the chink in the wall and peeped between the logs. The cabin was apparently empty of its unknown intruder.

After listening intently for some time he again stole around the wall to the door, pushed it slowly open and entered. As soon as his eyes grew accustomed to the gloom, he saw that the room was just as he had left it a few hours earlier.

Not daring to venture out on the floor, the light being too dim again to risk hiding his trail by stepping in the tracks, he reached up, caught one of the joists and, swinging from hand to hand, crossed to the far corner of the room; concealed himself behind the old boards and boxes of the rubbish heap and sat gripping his sore shoulder—the exertion had opened the gash, and he could feel the blood crawling down his side.

There is something depressing, fear-some, about entering an old deserted house—especially after nightfall. And this was the cabin of dead Henry Spencer. Few flatwoodsmen would care to go near it—much less into it—at such an hour.

Jack watched the last faint light from the west die out in the smudged window—so faint with clay that he had not been able to make out more than the bare outline of the face that had peered through it a few hours before. He knew the bats were darting about in the cabin, for the dark was alive with the click of their teeth. A screech owl shivered his lonesome wall from an upstanding branch of the fallen oak.

The woodsman half started, listened closely, smiled. The sound was genuine—it was a screech owl.

The low wash of Eagle run, lapping the rocks in its shallow bed, came up across the lonely road; the melancholy note of a whippoorwill carried down out of the woods.

A sound fell upon the night—the low swish of weeds in the yard—and the woodsman grew tense and strained. There followed a guarded footfall; a hand fumbled over the door. It opened; a heavy step creaked the sagging floor; a form bulked huge and black in the gloom; a hand and arm passed across the window and hung the blanket into place.

A match scraped—one of the old-fashioned kind that sputter a white before making much light—the chimney of the lamp was raised; the match laid to the wick. Out of the dark flared the powerful form and truculent face of—Black Bogus.

After a somewhat close study of the tracked floor, he went around on the other side of the lamp to the ruined hearth, lifted up a loosened slab of stone and felt under it.

Apparently what he expected to find was not there, for he swore, put the slab back, rose and slouched across the floor toward the rubbish heap. The man hiding behind it crouched still as one of the cabin logs and fingered the pistol butt at his hip. But the ruffian only rummaged out an old box, carried it back to the light and sat down.

Drawing a short pipe from his pocket, he filled it from a grimy tobacco sack, lighted it with another of the sputtering matches, and, with the air of a man quite at his ease, began to smoke.

As he smoked, the bitter lines of his face relaxed a trifle, and its half-haunting resemblance to a face that dwelt—and would ever dwell—in his memory again stole across the mind of the watcher.

Astonishing Results From Stella Vitae Are Reported In Oklahoma

Happy Women Declare It to Be the Greatest Treatment for Weakened, Run-Down Women the World Has Ever Known.

So remarkable are the results being produced by Stella Vitae, the improved treatment for "Female Troubles," that interest in the preparation is growing intense. Indeed, Stella Vitae and its powers in overcoming suffering peculiar to woman kind is rapidly becoming the leading topic of conversation among the women of Ada.

Scores of letters are being received daily from happy women in all parts of Oklahoma, telling in words that ring with sincerity and gratitude of the wonderful benefits they have received after taking Stella Vitae and proclaiming it the greatest treatment for the trouble peculiar to their sex that the world has ever known.

Among the larger number of Oklahoma women who have testified is one from Tulsa, who reported such splendid benefits that the statement is published below:

"Stella Vitae has done so much for me that I am always telling everybody I meet about it and advising other women to take it."

"I was going through the 'change of life' and was in a miserable condition when I first began taking Stella Vitae. I had been getting worse and worse for a long time and, although every kind of treatment was tried, nothing did me any good. Finally they said my case was hopeless and I could look for the worst."

"I was very despondent but concluded to at least try Stella Vitae, feeling that I could lose nothing. I am glad that I did. For this wonderful treatment proved even more than is claimed for it! In a short time all my troubles were gone and now I am as well and happy as can be."

"There is no doubt about it, Stella Vitae saved my life and I will never be able to say too much in praise of it."

Mrs. F. H. Hastie, 410 N. Frisco St., Tulsa, Okla.

Such voluntary statements as this from women who have actually tried the treatment can mean only one thing, Stella Vitae has proven to be the most effective treatment for "Female Diseases"—that has ever been used, and it is safe to predict that before long it will be a household necessity everywhere.

All druggists in Ada and throughout the state reports a supply of Stella Vitae and it the positive duty of every woman who is suffering from nervousness, sleeplessness, loss of appetite, loss of weight, headaches, backaches, or who are just simply feeling all run-down and good-for-nothing, as well as the thousands who have every symptom of troubles peculiar to their sex, to obtain Stella Vitae and find out if it will help them.

In all probability they will find relief from their suffering, but if not, the druggist will cheerfully refund the purchase price.—Adv.

AUTO BRINGS ERA OF TOURIST GOLD

Lapland Now Prospers from Overland Visit of Tourists.

(By the Associated Press)

ABISKO, Swedish Lapland, Santa Clags will move southward this year with an unusually fat and sleek lot of reindeer. There was an abundance of snow last winter, and rains have been frequent throughout the year in the mountain ranges over which the Laps herd their charges. Consequently survives the climate of the which survives the climate of the land north of the Arctic Circle and the small birch and shrubs have provided the reindeer with more than the average amount of forage.

The increase of tourist travel through Lapland as a result of new automobile roads has brought prosperity to many Laplanders. Travelers are now leaving the excursion ships at various points in the Norwegian fjords and inspecting the land of the midnight sun at close range. Touring agencies have arranged stamping on many picturesque lakes overlooked by glaciers, and venturesome mountain climbers are wandering far away from the beaten trail.

Like American Indians, the Laps are becoming more and more commercialized in the line of travel. Many of them are becoming professional Laps and they reap a harvest in tourist season selling reindeer slippers and reindeer clothing to the visitors.

This has been an especially good year for the Lapland souvenir dealers, as steamer traffic into the far north assumed pre-war proportions. Even the German submarines, which renewed their excursions into the land of midnight sun.

Then the Gothenburg exposition attracted large numbers of Americans and Englishmen who made the rail trip from South Sweden to the northern mountains whose primitive population afford such a contrast to the high-developed civilization and culture of the southern half of the Scandinavian peninsula.

WE REMIND YOU!

You had better make that appointment NOW for your holiday Photograph—you will want them later, there is no other gift that has quite so much personal touch.

CHAPTER XIV

The Scrape of a Match.

While grooming Graylock in his stall that evening Jack Warhope thought of the face that had appeared for its startling instant at the smudged window of Henry Spencer's unhallowed cabin. As a matter of fact, he had been thinking of it ever since riding out of the jaws of the hollow.

He hung up the curry comb and stepped to the barn door. The sun glared red through a slit in the cloud-bank, and still cleared the trees on the distant foothills by a yard—enough for the purpose he contemplated.

A moment later he was climbing the rough path that led to the uplands. Pausing to search critically the woods in every direction, he then stole away toward the ill-reputed cabin of the dead woodchopper.

OIL NEWS

The American Oil and Refining Company have a rotary rig up for a well in section 16-4-6 on the Stark farm. This is only a short distance east from the recent big gasser brought in. This well will have a decided interest attached, for it will help determine the extent of the gas field north of the city. 11-7-11

Encouraging report comes from the Lancaster well just east of the city on the P. A. Norris farm. Increased activity is being manifested in the new field discovered by Clark and Gilbert between Vannoss and Roff. It is believed that five or six new locations will be made within a few days. 11-7-11

Operations have been started on the test well in section 19, north of Francis. In view of the southern trend of the Wewoka field and the wells brought in near Francis, this test is one of the most important in the county. 11-7-11

Five wells in the lower part of Seminole county are being watched closely at this time. All of them are in Ada territory, and as soon as the bridge across the Canadian river is completed, Ada will receive much benefit from this drilling. As it is, several of the men live in Ada. 11-7-11

The William McDougal well in section 20-6-7 is drilling at 1650 feet. The Thomas Slick well is drilling at 2200 in section 24-6-6 and will encounter a sand before a great while, according to the geology of the territory. 11-7-11

John H. Harvey has the rig up for a well in section 33-6-6. He is tapping the high powered line from Byng and will drill the well with electricity for power. 11-7-11

The Link Oil Company is fishing for a string of tools at 1700 feet in section 14-6-7. 11-7-11

The Riverdale Oil Company of Tulsa has the rig for a test in section 4-5-5. This is just across the river from the Bebee wells, due north. So far as the northwest part of this county is concerned, this well has a direct interest. 11-7-11

Here's a popular way to serve Kellogg's Bran—greatest health food!

Most every one who realizes how effective Kellogg's Bran is for the permanent relief of constipation has their own particular way of serving this wonderful cereal. Most families eat it as a cereal with milk or cream. Others sprinkle it on their favorite hot or cold cereal. Every one enjoys its nut-like flavor! If you are cooking a hot cereal try this method:—Measure off two table-spoonfuls for each member of the family. Mix it with the cereal and cook as you always cook the cereal. Kellogg's Bran is scientifically prepared and ready to eat, but its regulative powers are in no way impaired if you cook it with other cereals. Kellogg's Bran has won the friendly recommendation of physicians because it does give prompt and permanent relief from mild or chronic constipation and because it can be eaten without forming a habit. Again, Kellogg's Bran will free you from drastic, dangerous cathartics. When constipation conditions exist in your system or when you are threatened, do not take half-way measures. Foods with a partial bran content cannot free you! What you must have is Kellogg's Bran because it is ALL BRAN! Go the limit; get relief! Every member of your family will delight in eating Bran raisin bread, muffins, pancakes, macaroons, etc. Recipes on every package. Start eating Bran to-day! Get well—keep well—keep disease out of your home! First-class hotels, clubs and restaurants serve Kellogg's Bran in individual packages. All grocers.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

GOD'S PROMISES KEPT.—There hath not failed one word of all his good promises.—1 Kings 8:56.

VOTE TUESDAY.

The election to be held Tuesday is important. The time has come for a showdown. Are we to have constitutional government or usurpation of dearly bought rights? Even of greater importance than any of the things we are voting for is the necessity of voting, for if election can be annulled at will, there is a danger that may grow into the worst kind of abuses—abuses which are borne by none other than semi-civilized peoples.

We believe that Initiative Bill No. 79 ought to carry without any appreciable opposition. It seems to us plain that the constitution implies the right of the Legislature to meet as a court to investigate acts of officials regardless of a call from one official whom it is sometimes the duty of the legislators to investigate. This seems to be in doubt however and the matter ought to be settled once and for all. It is State Question No. 119, Initiative Petition No. 79 and last on the ballot. Vote Yes.

We believe, too, that the bill providing for a better distribution of school funds ought to be adopted. This is designed to give the boys and girls in poor districts better educational facilities and it ought not to raise the taxes any in the average district. This is the third from the bottom of the ticket, State Question No. 124, Referendum Petition No. 44.

The Soldiers' Compensation bill will raise taxes, but if we assure it will be administered properly and fairly, we should say vote for it. This is like voting most bonds. The ends to be obtained are desirable. Every one should use his own judgment and vote what he believes to be the best interest of the state and the men whom we all owe. This is the third amendment from the top, State Question No. 123, Referendum Petition No. 43.

The first two amendments on the ticket, providing for compensation in case of death by accident while working on a job and the other giving women the right to hold state offices are not particularly objectionable and should carry.

State Question No. 125, providing for state payment of claims against the State Guaranty Fund should be defeated. While any one's sympathy goes to those who lost money from failed banks, it would be a bad precedent for the state to begin paying losses resulting from failed private businesses.

In view of the tenseness of the situation every citizen should by all means remain calm and do nothing that might incite trouble. A very slight move might be the spark of powder that started a great deal of trouble. It is a time for extreme forbearance, no matter what comes.

WALTON AND THE COURTS.

The action of Governor Walton in issuing a proclamation calling off the election calls to mind the story of the justice of the peace in Texas. When a young lawyer before him referred to a decision of the supreme court on a certain question the justice declared that the supreme court had reversed him several times and now he would just even things up by reversing the supreme court.

The governor refers to the litigation which has delayed the matter of getting the questions before the people by publication in two newspapers in each county, as provided by law. However, he does not tell the people who started the litigation and kept it going to the last minute. To sum it up, when the supreme court refused to pull his hot chesnuts out of the fire he had to scratch them out himself by means of a midnight proclamation recalling his original proclamation setting the election for October 2. What was the use of going to court in the first place if he had the right to rescind his action? Or for that matter why have a court at all?

The governor does not refer to a section of the law providing for publication of all questions to be voted on which declares that failure to publish the questions shall not invalidate the election. The writer, when president of the state press association, attended the legislative committee meeting at which this bill was drawn up. In view of the possibility that some official might undertake to invalidate a measure by refusing to have it published, this provision was inserted. The idea with the authors of the measure was to let the people rule and not permit their rights to be impaired by some smooth politician who might not like some measure that was coming to a vote.

One thing that will always tend to lessen class hatred in the United States is that no matter in what station a boy finds himself, he may climb up or down to another. When a man sees his son making a success in some line chosen by himself, he is not going to consider every man similarly engaged as his enemy. Reason tells him that his son is not the only one in that particular business or profession who is not his enemy, no matter what political agitators may tell him.

After mature consideration of the merits of the measure, we shall vote for the better schools amendment. All children in Oklahoma are entitled to an equal chance for an education and this measure will give it to them.

MRS. BELMONT ON MARRIAGE

(Star-Telegram)

Mrs. Oliver Hazard Perry Belmont of New York, whose figure is as impressive as her name, is "unable to recommend marriage for any girl chiefly because marriage is a sort of slavery." "I would not say in so many words that marriage is a failure," says she, "but it seems to me that statistics speak for themselves."

Unfortunately Mrs. O. H. P. is not definite enough. Perhaps she refers to the divorce statistics, which indicate to a large percentage of American marriages terminate thus. If this is her reference, we have occasion to consider other of Mrs. Belmont's statements contained in the same dispatch which reported her inability to recommend the married state to any female. "Most of the opposition to the equal rights movement comes from women of the clinging vine type," she said, adding: "Intelligent women are with us. Among the men our only opponents are the 'small town' men and the church organizations."

There's plenty of dynamite in that to justify Mrs. Belmont's pride in being called one who hews to the line and the devil take the hindmost chips. She seems to think that those who oppose women's rights are the ones who make the divorce problem what it is. But she's all wrong. It is rarely that a woman "of the clinging vine type," or a "small town man," this phrase presumably referring to the man old fashioned in his views of marriage, are found in the divorce courts. We are not seeking to prove that the marriage in which either of these exorcized types is a party is not just what Mrs. Belmont says all marriage is, a sort of slavery. We are merely asserting that the magnitude of divorce in the United States is a comparatively recent phenomenon closely associated with modern developments in the relations between men and women. It is the men and women of modern views—including recognition of women's rights—who people the divorce courts. Perhaps it is only because they have acquired the courage to lift themselves out of the miseries of ill-mating.

We do not share Mrs. Belmont's evidenced belief that the "new freedom" of women will do away with marriage. The world, with perhaps America foremost, is escaping from the forms and restrictions of conventions, and gradually is building up a new structure of marriage based upon the new recognition of equality of the relationship between the sexes. The turmoil, the many failures at the present, result because men and women have not kept pace with legislation. And in this, as in the matter of "women's rights," the majority of disturbers are women. There are comparatively few who in actuality accept the idea of equality between the sexes. One class clings to the old conception, the other leaps to the other extreme and under the plea of equality demands actual superiority over the other sex.

Between the two is a small but ever-growing heaven composed of fully developed women who have achieved the realization of the true partnership that is to be the new order. As this heaven extends throughout womanhood, the more flexible body of manhood will also have developed, and marriage will again become a permanent institution, but through compatibility instead of constraint of one sort or the other.

EXPORT HAITIAN SHOTS IN MATCH

Island Riflemen May Enter for Honors in Olympic Tournament.

(By the Associated Press)

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Oct. 1.—That Haiti will be represented in the 1924 Olympic games for the first time in her history was practically decided at the conclusion of a two-day national rifle contest here in which 43 picked shots of the Gendarmerie d'Haiti matched their skill as riflemen. President Louis Borno, Brig. Gen. John H. Russell, American High Commissioner, and Major General Douglas C. McDougal, Chief of the Gendarmerie, have taken up the matter of Haiti's representation and if the financial phase can be arranged a five-man team, with two substitutes, will carry the red and blue flag of Haiti to France and compete in both the team and individual rifle matches scheduled between June 21 and June 29, 1924.

This year the winner of the first President's match, Sergeant Astrale Rolland, again proved his title as the champion rifle shot of the Gendarmerie, a force of 2,400 Haitians officered by both American marine officers and Haitian lieutenants. Rolland scored 234 points out of a possible 250, averaging 47 points at each range, as against his 1922 score of 277. In the National Team Match, in which the Southern, Central, Northern and Port-au-Prince Departments competed with eight men teams at the same ranges, the Southern again won with a total score of 1,763 out of a possible 2,000, averaging 220 1-2 points as compared to an average of 217 points in 1922.

In this match Rolland was second high gun with a score of 229, the high man being Private Pierre Vi-clere of Jacmel with 232. The second team, the Port-au-Prince Department, with its score of 1,709, averaged 213 1-2, and in the last stages the Central Department overhauled the Northern and finished with a margin of three points lead although the anchor man of the Central Department, Private Fanfax, scored a perfect 50 in his last string.

RUSSO-BRITISH BARTER NOW REACHES SHIP-LOAD STAGE

GRIMSBY, England.—Barter trading with Russia has been carried on for some time in small transactions, but the first steamer to carry a full load of goods for barter is shortly leaving here for the Kara Sea. This is the steamer "Trotsky," owned by the Russian Norwegian Navigation Company, which will carry tea, coffee, wines, textiles and agricultural implements to be exchanged for furs, skins, swansdown and horse-hair. These will be brought by caravan a distance of 2,000 miles to a point on the Kara Sea, which the "Trotsky" will touch at.

Dreams That Come True

THE BUSINESS WOMAN of today is the household financier of tomorrow. From her experience she learns that there can be no lasting happiness in the home unless it is built on a reasonable degree of financial stability.

Our new booklet, "The Woman in the Case," has among its characters a little stenographer whose vision was not restricted to the world of "good times."

She looked ahead and realized how this Company could help her to make dreams come true.

Are you one of the people that go through life not realizing the possibilities for financial independence that exist today for the able-bodied young American?

Just a few minutes of clear thinking some day may be the cause of your success in life.

Few things are more interesting than one's own future. We believe that we have something that will interest you and prove of the utmost value towards building the success and prosperity that should rightfully be yours.

We shall be glad to send you a copy of our booklet "The Woman in the Case" upon request. Ask for it now.

LONG DISTANCE RACES FEATURE

Latonia to Witness Series of Sensational Heats in Racing Period.

(By the Associated Press)
LATONIA, Ky., Oct. 4.—Long distance racing is featuring the Latonia race meeting, which runs for 31 days ending November 3. Purse in the seven stake events alone, offered by the Kentucky Jockey Club, aggregate $105,000. The chief race of the meeting is the $50,000 Kentucky Special, which will be run Saturday. This is a handicap for three-year-olds and upward, at one and three-sixteenth miles, and is the richest event of its kind run in America. The nearest approach to the Kentucky Special was in 1903 at St. Louis when a $50,000 handicap was offered, and was won by Colonial Girl; but it was a guaranteed stake and the owner of Colonial Girl received $42,000 for his part. In the Kentucky Special the Kentucky Jockey Club adds $50,000 to all entrance fees. Zev and My Own both are entered in this race. Richer races have been run, but none of them was an open handicap for three-year-olds and upward.

In addition, the Latonia Cup event, the longest distance race run in America, will have $15,000 added. This race, for three-year-olds and up, at two miles and a quarter, tests the stamina of the staunchest thoroughbreds.

The Latonia Championship, "Fall Derby," is for three-year-olds only at one and three-quarter miles, and all the good three-year-olds in training have been named as possible starters. The owner of the winner here will receive about $40,000.

These three events, which bring together the distance running thoroughbreds, are maintained by the Jockey Club in deference to the well-known partiality of racing patrons to long distance racing.

The best baby racers in the country will come together in the Queen City Handicap, for with the $10,000 added money, the winner's portion will be in the neighborhood of $18,000.

Many other stake events of lesser value are on the program.

WITH THE WOMEN OF TODAY

Mrs. Bernice S. Pyke, of Lakewood, O., democratic national committee woman for Ohio, has been appointed regional director of democratic women's activities in Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky.

This announcement was made in Washington recently by Cordell Hull, chairman of the democratic national committee. Mrs. Pyke will maintain headquarters in Cleveland, or which her home, Lakewood is a suburb.

Soon after the November elections a regional meeting will be held in Cleveland which Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, vice chairman of the democratic national committee, will attend. Mrs. Blair is in charge of the women's work at the Washington headquarters. Plans will be made for mobilizing women through out the country for the 1924 presidential campaign.

Mrs. Pyke is a veteran of Ohio suffrage campaigns. She was the first woman ever selected as a delegate to a national political convention.

PROTECTIVE GIRLS' CLUB IS OPENED

Helping Others is the keynote of the work of the Girls' Service Club of the New York Protective and Probation Association. The club provides a safe and comfortable home for the girl who is stranded,

Two brownstone houses have been remodeled into an attractive clubhouse, with an Old English sign and a lantern pointing the way to the open door. Here are safety, food and lodging. Here is the employment exchange, where, with-out fee, girls may find work to which they are best fitted. Here is the Girls' Service Bureau, through which friendly, sympathetic help is given, and where the physician and psychiatrist study their abilities and make recommendations for their future. In the large clubrooms league meetings are held, at which girls learn about laws and method of helping others, and discuss problems of vital concern to them. Teas on Sunday afternoons, music and speeches Sunday evenings, clubs, classes, recreation and parties to groups of blind girls or poor children help club members to fulfill the purpose of helping others.

WOMEN TAXI DRIVERS
Women taxi drivers have made good in New York. This seems to be an accepted fact. Many women passengers, strangers of the ways of New York, prefer to trust a fellow woman to pilot them about than a man. Of course there are always people who "wouldn't take a chance riding in a cab driven by a girl," and these people disheartened the women more than blowouts and other mechanical troubles. But the consensus of opinion is that the woman driver has come to stay.

"Women are more careful drivers than men," said R. R. Wilson, head of the taxi corporation that introduced the women to the driver's seat of a taxicab. "Women do not take the long chances common among the men chauffeurs. They are more obedient to the regulations, obeying them not only when there is a traffic policeman around but at all other times as well. They do not loiter, but pay strict attention to business. And they take an interest in keeping their machines as neat as possible, giving their cars such attention as they accord to their own appearance."

UNITE TO ADVANCE RELIGIOUS KNOWLEDGE

(By the Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Representatives of the twelve leading Protestant denominations have joined recently in the incorporation of a new religious educational body known as "The Institute for the Advancement of Christian Knowledge." This was announced today by Judge Henry Wade Rogers, L. I. D., president of the institute. The first step in the institute's program, which contemplates the study of religious problems and engaging in religious surveys and research, will be to secure the publication of an American Encyclopedia of Christianity.

Plans for getting out the encyclopedia for American Protestants are already under way, with an editorial board of nine Protestant scholars, headed by Dr. Joseph Cullen Ayer, professor of ecclesiastical history in the Divinity School of the Protestant Episcopal church, in Philadelphia. The work will be in twelve volumes, of approximately a million words each, and will take six years to be completed. The editorial policy will be strictly impartial from an objective point of view, and it is proposed to let at least two different writers handle subjects that are open to controversy.

"The need for a body like the Institute for the Advancement of Christian Knowledge," its president, Judge Rogers, said, "arose out of present day conditions. This is a day of a new and widespread religious renaissance. It is an hour in which the Protestant church of the United States faces new duties, hears a new call to new activities. The purposes of the institute, in general, are to function as a laboratory of religion."

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

NOT EVERY ONE THAT SAITH LORD, LORD:—Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven.—Matthew 7:21.

ELECTING A PRESIDENT.

Occasionally one hears an expression favoring the election of the president and vice president by popular vote instead of by the electoral system as established by the constitution. However, no insistent demand has been voiced, so it will probably be some years before the change is made.

Although the framers of the constitution were far in advance of their day in liberal views, they were far behind the views that prevail today. They did not think that it was advisable to put too much power in the hands of the people so it was provided that senators should be elected by the state legislatures and the president and vice president chosen by electors who should be selected as the legislature might direct. The founders of the government could not foresee party government that came into being within a few years after the constitution had been put into effect and their idea was that the electoral college would be composed of the most level headed men of the various states who would after careful consideration cast their votes for the men best qualified for the high offices. Naturally Washington was the unanimous choice of the college for his two terms but by the time the next election came around a sharp alignment of parties had resulted from the conflicting theories of government as represented by Adams on one side and Jefferson on the other and the electors cast their ballots for their respective parties rather than for the men. This has been the case ever since and no elector has ever cast a vote for any candidate other than the nominee of his party.

At first the state legislatures chose the electors, but one by one they passed this power to the people until at length all had fallen in line.

Under the present system all votes for electors in a state above an actual majority are superfluous, for no matter how large the popular majority of a candidate may be it is the electoral vote that counts. It is possible for a man to receive an enormous popular majority or plurality and then lose because he lacks a sufficient electoral vote. Thus Tilden received 250,000 more votes than did Hayes, but the latter won the office. Cleveland received nearly 100,000 more votes than did Harrison, but was far behind in the electoral vote. McKinley received 250,000 plurality over Bryan in 1896 but a change of 25,000 votes placed in close states would have elected Bryan.

SUGGESTIONS WITHOUT MERIT

President Coolidge is said to be giving much time and thought to suggestions as to the best method of relieving the acute situation which faces the farmers of America. Many suggestions are being made. Generally these suggestions are wholly without merit. They are the usual clap-trap of the man who seeks to gain the support and confidence of the farmers by brave talk. A tariff on wheat, can have no result upon the price of wheat. The Canadian wheat prices are governed by the prices of the Chicago board of trade. Even if Canadian wheat comes into this country and is used here; for every bushel so imported, many bushels are exported to Great Britain.

A high tariff on Canadian wheat will keep Canada's wheat out of America but it will send it into Great Britain and thereby cancel the demand for ours. The net result can only be to cause bad feeling toward us upon the part of the Canadians. Canada is our second best market and several hundred thousand men depend upon Canadian markets to supply them with work. Another favorite hallucination is that freight rates will raise the price of farm products. Reduced freight rates would undoubtedly reduce the cost to the ultimate consumer but it would not enhance the price received by the producer. As usual, another one of the suggestions is to make it easier for farmers to borrow money and involve them in more debt.—Okmulgee Democrat.

CIRCUS COMING TOMORROW.

The Honest Bill and Lucky Bill shows will close the season tomorrow with two performances at Ada and then go into winter quarters. The News hopes to see the show well patronized. In the first place this show is a good one. In the second its owners are public spirited citizens of Ada who merit patronage, and the third reason is that every dollar taken in goes to the Presbyterian church building fund.

An exchange points out that Miami, Fla., is a city built by advertising. The place was not even incorporated until 1896 and it was some years before it began to wake up and to let the people know it was on the map as a winter resort. The first year it was a very hard matter to raise $2,000 with which to put on an advertising campaign but such excellent results were obtained that the advertising campaign now costs more than $100,000 annually. In the meantime Miami's fame has been spread far and wide and the little town has grown to the dimensions of a wealthy city.

ETHYL GAS FOR USE BY MOTORIST

Non-knock Motor Fuel Developed by General Motors Research Corporation.

In his address before the Society of Automotive Engineers in Chicago October 12th, C. F. Kettering, president of the General Motors Chemical Company, announced that a contract has been entered into between that company and the Standard Oil Company of Indiana for the distribution of Ethyl Gas, says Chevrolet Dealers here.

Ethyl Gas is the new fuel developed by General Motors Research Corporation. It has the effect of taking the knock out of a motor, no matter under what conditions or load an automobile is driven. It is the result at the laboratories of the General Motors Research Corporation in Dayton, and has met with enthusiastic reception from motorists in Dayton and in Cincinnati, Ohio, where it has been placed on sale at a few stations.

Ethyl Gas has a characteristic light wine color, which distinguishes it from other automobile fuels.

Distribution by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana will cover the states of Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, South Dakota and North Dakota as quickly as installation can be made. This installation will be started in Indiana and carried through Illinois, into Missouri and Kansas. The southern part of the distributing territory is being equipped this winter and the northern part will be equipped as early as possible in the spring, in order that motorists may be supplied when the 1924 motoring season opens. First installations will be made in Standard Oil Company of Indiana service stations. It is being estimated that all stations will be open and ready to supply Ethyl Gas by July 1st, 1924.

There are 968 towns and cities in the eleven states mentioned, where one or more service stations is operated. Bulk distributing facilities exist in 4,088 towns.

MANY ATTEND PARENT TEACHERS ASSOCIATION

High School Parent-Teachers Association met last Friday evening in the high school auditorium.

Interesting talks on the school activities were made by Messrs Hill, German, Cudd, Daugherty, Bliss and Hickman. Quite a number of parents enjoyed this program.

We hope the parents who were not there last time will make an effort to be present at the next meeting. We are all interested in good things and want to have a part in them. So watch for an announcement of the next meeting.—Reporter.

Yellow Dog Barking.

The yelp of the Yellow Dog is beginning to sound louder in every direction, they are hot on the trail to Ada—even Hosent Bill Newton has heard the call, and has arrived with his complete Circus to assist in the round-up. There will be lots of howling and yelping on December 7th, and the noise will not subside until enough funds are raised to clothe the poor kiddies, some of whom are kept from school for lack of proper clothing. So fall in on the trail as there are no exclusions, and no exceptions. Join the Yellow Dogs.

Women Appreciate It

YOU will be delighted with the wonderful luster your curtains and all household fabrics have after being starched with Lint, the remarkable new starch discovery.

Lint penetrates the fabric, prolongs its life, and gives a soft, cool, pliable finish that makes even the most ordinary cotton goods look and feel like expensive linen.

THIS remarkable starch is made by an improved process that keeps it fluid after it cools.

After Lint is thoroughly dissolved, according to directions, and ready for use, you will notice it is THIN and FREE-RUNNING LIKE WATER—with a "milky" appearance. Be sure to use Lint according to directions, and unlike other starches, you will not find Lint stiff or jelly-like. This is one reason why Lint goes much further than the old-fashioned kind of starches and is easy to iron with.

Lint costs 10c at all grocers

Get a package and begin the modern way of starching your fabrics. Perfection in starching guaranteed or your money refunded.

Finest Auditorium Puts Cleveland in Convention Race

A city architect, by designing a hall in which 15,000 people can hear perfectly, put Cleveland in the race for the National Republican Convention. Yet for months while this auditorium was nearing completion Architect J. H. MacDowell stood an avalanche of criticism which was only dispelled by successful test when the auditorium was completed.

Critics included college professors and experts with high sounding degrees. Flaming headlines declared that the new hall, the largest in the world and costing the taxpayers $7,000,000, would be an architectural failure and practically a dead loss.

A famous firm of consulting architects threw up their job rather than share the failure.

"Conspiracy," says Architect. But MacDowell stood by his plans and charged that adverse publicity was inspired by an effort to sell the city sound absorbing felt to put on walls and ceiling. Instead of felt MacDowell had specified a plaster of peculiar porous structure which was jokingly called "MacDowell's plaster" in paraphrase of his name. The final touch of opposition came when the plasterers' union refused to put it on for fear of being blamed for possible unfavorable results.

Has Original System. But the job was finally finished and proved a brilliant success. Not only were speakers and musicians on the rostrum heard easily, but a man speaking in any part of the vast hall could be heard in any other part.

This was accomplished by a system of sound direction and control, which MacDowell originated and which was opposite in principle to many of the accepted ideas of experts. The heavy cross beams of the ceiling, shown in the picture, are a part of MacDowell's plan for checking reverberation. "I never had any doubt of the outcome," says Architect MacDowell. "I had employed the same principles in about twenty smaller halls, theaters and churches before coming to Cleveland. I certainly would be proud to have a president nominated in our auditorium."

LONG LIFE FEATURE OF DODGE AUTOMOBILES

Dodge Brothers motor cars are favorably known throughout the world for many important advantages but are probably best known for their ability to give satisfactory service over a long period of years for a period of life beyond that commonly allotted to a motor car. Ninety-four percent of the cars that have been manufactured by this company are still in operation, day in, day out, in all parts of the country.

One of the most notable examples of the long life and durability of Dodge Brothers cars is found in Car No. 12, the first Dodge Brothers car shipped to the Pacific Coast, arrived there in December 1914. No. 12 was displayed in San Francisco and Oakland, used as a demonstrator and eventually sold. Recently it was in the possession of a rancher near Santa Rosa, who used it in his daily work. He refused to sell it outright but finally traded it in on a new car. At the present time it has been run approximately 175,000 miles.

From Walnut Cove, N. C., comes word that Car No. 5 is running satisfactorily as a service car for the Davis Repair Company. Mr. Davis writes, "The motor still has in it the original pistons and bearings that were installed at the factory nine years ago. No. 5 has been in service every day."

There was recently displayed in a parade in Manhattan, Kansas a Dodge Brothers car sold in December, 1914. Its speedometer now shows a mileage of 224,000 miles, and the car is in constant daily use.

Carl Schafer, of Madison, Wis., is an enthusiastic Dodge Brothers owner. Mr. Schafer purchased a used Dodge Brothers car in September, 1916. Since then he has driven, and has proof to support his statement, over 229,000 miles. Mr. Schafer has sworn to the above fact before a notary.

Some time ago John Jastermiller, Jr., and Robert Raur, two young men of Terre Haute, purchased a used Dodge Brothers touring car with which to tour Canada, Mexico and the Western States. At the time the car was purchased the speedometer registered 203,000 miles, and there were those who doubted that the car would ever reach Chicago. The boys returned a few weeks ago, after having gone even farther than they expected, having added 11,121 miles to the original 203,000 mileage. They expect to make a tour of the Eastern States next year with the same car.

Dodge Brothers records cite numerous instances, such as the above, of the durability and unusually long life of their cars.

Alaska Aims to Create Trade Balance in Favor of Territory

(By the Associated Press)

ANCHORAGE, Alaska.—Alaska used to buy all its manufactured articles in the United States, depending for commercial existence solely on its ores and placer gold fisheries and furs, which found a ready export market. But now the vast territory is turning its attention to industrial enterprises, with a view of cutting down imports and increasing exports.

The government railroad promises to make Anchorage a commercial center. Among the projects under way here is a birchwood manufacturing plant, where furniture and other staple articles will be turned out. A birch logging mill is planned. There are millions of feet of birch timber adjacent to the railroad and tidewater, and industrialists intend to export finished lumber instead of rude logs.

Five Thousand Dollars

By MORRIS SCHULTZ

(© 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

LYING on his bed in the cabin, Hank Winton listened to the whispered voices in the next room.

Three days before, Hank, wounded in the arm, had ridden up to the cabin. No questions were asked of him—that is not the mountain way. But Hank suspected that his identity was known. And the five thousand dollars placed upon his head would mean a fortune to this poor, ignorant young couple struggling along with their few mountain sheep on the poor range.

Five thousand dollars! Hank had shot the sheriff, who tried to intercept him after his escape from the penitentiary. The sheriff had recovered, crippled for life. Twenty years faced him.

Five thousand dollars! He had never been worth a quarter of that sum. If he had had five thousand dollars years before Molly would not have divorced him. Molly and her husband were happy, but very poor; and there was the kid—Hank's own kid, brought up in ignorance that his father was alive.

Hank would have given his liberty to have let the boy have his chance in the world. Molly would see to that.

The startling thought that flashed through his brain dissolved as he heard that stealthy whispering through the wall again.

He must get on at dawn. And, planning this, he fell asleep from exhaustion.

Next morning his host said, with a shifty glance at him:

"I guess I got to go into town this mornin' to have that sheep medicine sent out. You stay here with the wife, old-timer. Shore, everything will be all right. That would you got chasin' Hank Winton will soon heal in this hyar mountain air. You're good for as long as you stay, old-timer."

Hank thanked him briefly. He knew why the man was going into town. It was the result of his talk with his wife the night before. They meant to do the right thing, but five thousand dollars—

And there was a baby coming. Five thousand dollars! Why, he, Hank, would have sold his best friend to give five thousand dollars to Tom!

Again that startling thought flashed through his mind. He watched his host ride off. The woman went into the kitchen and made a pretense of peeling potatoes. Hank watched her through the open door. She was crying.

Suddenly she turned and came to him. "You saddle the pinto and ride away before my man gets back," she said.

Hank smiled. It was a winsome smile; the desperado was still a young man; he had not lost all his boyishness.

"I reckon you know," "Shore, we both know, and I reckon you know why my man's rid into town. There's time to git away yet. That pinto of yours can go fast. If it wasn't for—for the baby." She put her hand to her throat. "But I jest can't do it now," she said. "You take the pinto. He'll understand."

"I—I got a kid of my own," said Hank.

She looked at him with slow understanding. "That shore is tough," she said.

"And I was thinkin', what's the sense of goin' on bein' an outlaw when I'm bound to git caught sooner or later? If I was to take my medicine I guess I'd be out in thirteen years or so, with a trade, and—there's that kid of mine. Twenty-five hundred would jest about set him right with the world. And I guess it would jest about set you right."

"You—mean?" "Shore that's what I mean. Twenty-five hundred's a mighty big lot of money and... I guess I could trust you."

"You saddle that pinto!" she flashed out.

"Well, I guess not," said Hank. "Besides, I ain't well enough to ride yet."

Two hours later the galloping horsemen converged about the shack. Hank was ridden down and covered.

"Well, I guess we got you to rights, Hank," remarked the deputy.

"Guess so," Hank answered.

The man who had sold him came up to the little group. "Satisfied that's him?" he asked.

"Shore that's him," they answered curtly. They moved away from him, Hank laughed.

"That's all right, old-timer," he said. "Don't hold it against him. I was aimin' to surrender, and we thought we might as well divide up that there reward between us. Twenty-five hundred each shore is a lot of money."

Fair Exchange No Robbery. The Punxville grocery store had been broken into and robbed.

"It was the work of local thieves, home talent," announced the sheriff after sleuthing the place over thoroughly. The grocer beamed.

"Well, then," he said, "I got no grudge."

"That's neighborly—but why?" "Oh, 'tain't so much neighborliness. I guess we're even. Chances are I've been sellin' the guilty parties their groceries."

Fashion Note. Miss Sweet—Where can I find petticoats?

Floorwalker—Have you tried the curio department?

You're paying approximately two-thirds of a cent in local, state and federal taxes every time you drop a coin in a street care fare box.

University Of Oklahoma Cross Country Team Finishes Season

Eradication of illiteracy in Oklahoma; proper observance of national holidays; combating of communism, and other forms of radicalism; teaching of proper respect to the flag; fostering of boy scout troops; restriction of immigration and concentration of comradeship by devotion to mutual helpfulness is the program outlined by H. B. Drake of the Department Headquarters of the American Legion.

Service to nation, state and community is the keynote of the entire program promulgated by Chairman Drake. These propositions have been formulated and forwarded to every post of the American Legion in the state of Oklahoma and are to be the principal objectives attained by the American Legion in Oklahoma during the coming year. Members of the American Legion have been urged by Department Headquarters to assist in conducting and carrying out this program.

The American Legion Posts at Port, Sulphur and Kaw City were the first to notify Department Headquarters that they had secured more memberships in the Legion for 1924 than they had during the previous year.

The American Legion membership campaign is being successfully conducted throughout Oklahoma and since these posts have been reported that their quota has been reached.

Department Commander Cody Fowler of the American Legion addressed the members of Joe Carson Post no. 1, Tulsa on Tuesday evening, November 27th. At that time their drive for 124 members was launched.

During the past week Department Headquarters of the American Legion was in receipt of an application for an American Legion charter from Ringland, Oklahoma.

Dr. C. A. Johnson of Wilson, Oklahoma, member of the Department Executive Committee, from the 3rd District, is assisting in the organization of this new post.

A. C. Sinney has temporarily been selected as Post Commander, F. G. Bellinger as Post Adjutant and Roy Red as Finance Officer.

Commanders of the Legion Posts in the 3rd Congressional District have been called to a conference to be held at Ardmore on December 6th. This call was issued last week by Giles A. Kelley, District Commander of that district.

Commander Cody Fowler has offered a prize for the one who suggests the best name for the new American Legion publication which will be issued beginning soon after the first of the coming year. Several names have been suggested and more are being received in every mail.

When the Sooners met the Oklahoma Aggies at Norman, the Aggies were victorious by a score of 25 to 30 but the Sooners star, Rutherford finished first. Kansas and Oklahoma ran at the homecoming football game at Norman and Oklahoma won 27 to 28, the most hotly contested race of the season.

Rutherford was first man to the tape in every race he started. McElyea was either second or third in all his races. Tad Star, Indian runner of Muskogee, turned the race against Kansas into victory when he sprinted on the finish of-er taking a Jayhawk runner who was about 50 yards in the lead.

With the exception of Captain Scott of Ardmore, the Sooners runners are all first year men and will have two more years of competition which should give Oklahoma a great cross country team in the next two years. Scott is the only second year member of the team.

claims in an amount exceeding ten thousand dollars have been handled by Department Headquarters of the American Legion, working in cooperation with the American Red Cross in the distribution of the State Aid fund authorized by the last legislature.

FOR CONSTIPATION

Black-Draught Recommended by an Arkansas Farmer Who Has Used It, When Needed, for 25 Years.

Hatfield, Ark.—Mr. G. W. Parsons, a well-known farmer on Route 1, this place, says: "I keep Black-Draught in my home all the time. It is the best all-around medicine I have ever found for the liver and for constipation. We began using it 25 or more years ago and have used it whenever needed since. I have never found any other medicine as good for constipation, and that was what I suffered with till I began using Black-Draught. Black-Draught corrected this condition, and now we use it for the liver and for indigestion—a tight and sluggish feeling after meals, for bad taste in the mouth and sour stomach."

"My wife uses it for headache and biliousness. It sets on our shelf and we don't let it get out. It has been a great help to us. I believe a great deal of sickness is caused by hurried eating and constipation, and Black-Draught, if taken right, will correct this condition."

NEWS NOTES FROM MOVIELAND

Carmel Myers.

R. W. Griffith "discovered" Carmel Myers a number of years ago and induced her father to allow her to appear on the screen. He directed that after three years of hard work she would be playing leading parts. But even such a wizard as Griffith may be mistaken. He was right as to Carmel's playing leads, but it was two months only instead of three years when she played her first.

Douglas Fairbanks engaged her to play the feminine lead in "The Matrimoniac," and ever since she has been playing important roles. She is at present appearing opposite John Barrymore in "Beau Brummel," and also in "Law Against Law," the Rupert Hughes story. "Slaves of Desire," is the picture that critics say will make a star of the very brightest ray of Carmel, however.

Miss Myers recently took a leading part in a playlet given for the actors' benefit fund and her work was such that she received an offer to appear in a musical comedy. It would not be new work for Carmel as a number of years ago, before her screen career, she was in musical comedy.

NOT ALL CLOSING

Cosmopolitan, Preferred Pictures, Mack Sennet, Associated First National, Warner Brothers are not closing their studios but are as busy as ever. Thos. H. Ince announces that his production schedule for 1923-24 will continue as it was planned months ago. M. C. Levee, president of the United Studios, says that original plans for the improvement program will continue with greater activities than ever. Maurice Tourneur, independent producer, says, "I was never so active in my life." Richard Walter Tully also announces a strenuous program with increased activities.

CARMEL ORGANIZES NON-DRIVING CLUB

In Carmel Myers' spare time she has lately organized the "Anti-Auto Driving Club of Movie Stars." She says that "the movie camera is telling the tale of too much auto driving"—(for feminine contingent, I take it). "If we do not stop the modern American woman, as depicted on the screen by movie players, will look like the rear view of Jack Dempsey. We are developing muscles in our shoulders and backs befitting prize fighters."

"TORMENT" TO BE PARTLY SCREENED ABROAD

Maurice Tourneur's "Torment" will be screened in the three countries in which the scenes of the story are laid. The drama opens in Russia, then turns to the U. S., then to Japan where the climax of the plot is laid. Owen Moore and Bessie Love have the leading parts.

LLOYD HUGHES GETS A THRILL

Real bullets are fired at the feet of Lloyd Hughes by some of the heavies in his new picture of the "wild and woolly" "The Heritage of the Desert." Needless to say that Lloyd makes the quickest exit on record from this scene.

VINITA.—At the close of the annual Craig county Poultry show here, a new organization to extend the movement for larger and better poultry production in the county was founded. Harold Boggs was elected president, Clyde Cochran, secretary and superintendent; J. L. Menreigh, treasurer. It is the aim of the new organization to increase the membership of boys' and girls' poultry clubs.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or grey. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.—Adv.

RED PEPPER HEAT STOPS BACKACHE

The heat of red peppers takes the "ouch" from a sore, lame back. It can not hurt you, and it certainly ends the torture at once.

When you are suffering so you can hardly get around, just try Red Pepper Rub, and you will have the quickest relief known. Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers.

Just as soon as you apply Red Pepper Rub you will feel the tingling heat. In three minutes it warms the sore spot through and through. Pain and soreness are gone.

Ask any druggist for a jar of Rowles Red Pepper Rub. Be sure to get the genuine, with the name Rowles on each package.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR

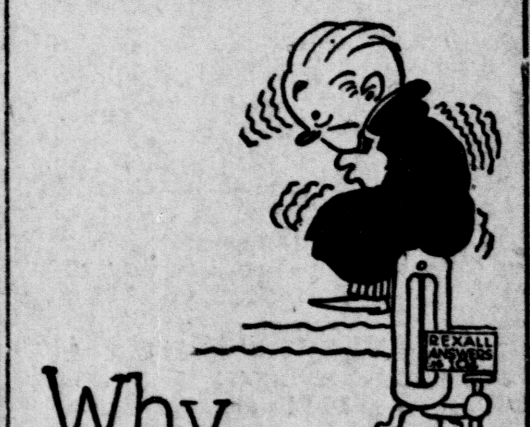

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94 per cent air and 6 per cent common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, B. P. Johnson, 609 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill., is offering to send a lamp on 10 day's FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

666 quickly relieves Colds, Fever and LaGrippe, Constipation, Biliousness and Headaches.
